About

BayMax is an online software system that is designed to assist healthcare professionals and patients in managing healthcare-related activities. These applications can be used for a wide range of purposes, such as:

- Health and wellness management: Medical web applications can provide users with access to health and wellness resources, such as diet and exercise trackers, symptom checkers, and medication reminders.
- Clinical decision support: Medical web applications can provide healthcare providers with decision support tools, such as drug interaction checkers and diagnostic support systems.
